A fascinating cultural history of intelligence.

We encounter the idea of intelligence everywhere in our modern lives. Parents are told that their children will grow up smart if they are made to listen to Mozart, play with the right toys, and eat the healthiest foods. Schools plunge everyone into the ruthless world of testing and academic competition. Those who attend the right universities are likely to earn vastly more over their lifetimes than those who found education a struggle.

We are told repeatedly that some of the richest and most successful people in society - tech pioneers, CEOs or financial wizards - are rich and successful precisely because they're so smart. And now, we see AI having more and more of an impact on our jobs, our societies, and the very survival of our species.

Intelligence is an idea that infuses every aspect of our world, and one that we think matters. But this hasn't always been the case. Like all ideas, intelligence has a history.

Smart draws on science, politics, and popular culture to uncover the stories of the people and projects that built the modern idea of intelligence.

DR DAVID BRYDAN is an historian of the 20th century, based at King's College London. His previous work has focussed on the political and social history of the modern period, including the history of fascism, international cooperation and humanitarianism and he has published a book on the history of Spain with Oxford University Press, as well as edited collections with Bloomsbury Academic and others.

A story about grief and what it means to lose not only loved ones, but also a place in the world and a sense of belonging.

A beautifully and compellingly written memoir-family saga where the author retraces the love story between her Palestinian father and Italian mother, and the life of her half-Italian, half-Palestinian family from the 1960s to 2020. After the loss of her mother, she tries to renegotiate her mixed identity and understand her mother's choices from an oppressive childhood in a village in Tuscany to love and community activism in Palestine.

Sabrin interweaves personal stories with key historical moments from the 1960s to the present day, universalising the Palestinian experience by honing in on everyday life and the shared human emotions and experiences that unite us.

A compelling journey through myth, magic and medicine to reframe the story of the Caesarean section.

The words 'Caesarean Section' are powerful. They conjure up strong emotions. For some, feelings of doubt, shame and judgement. For others a sense of safety, relief, validation and reassurance.

But they are rarely spoken of in the ecstatic tones with which we celebrate so-called natural, or vaginal birth. They are rarely called beautiful, or associated with an innate sense of feminine power.

Knotting its way through history, culture, folklore and human experience throughout the world, Thread seeks to reframe the Caesarean Section on its journey through myth, magic and medicine.

Journalist Hannah Marsh blends the medical with the mystical, charting the development of a now common procedure, once a dance between life and death: a last-ditch attempt to save a child whose mother lay dead or dying. Weaving in the arc of her own experience, a journalist's insatiable curiosity, and the stories of contemporary, historical and mythical women, who endured, sacrificed and drove developments, Thread is an unflinching but compassionate examination of a procedure that nowadays remains both pedestrian and miraculous.

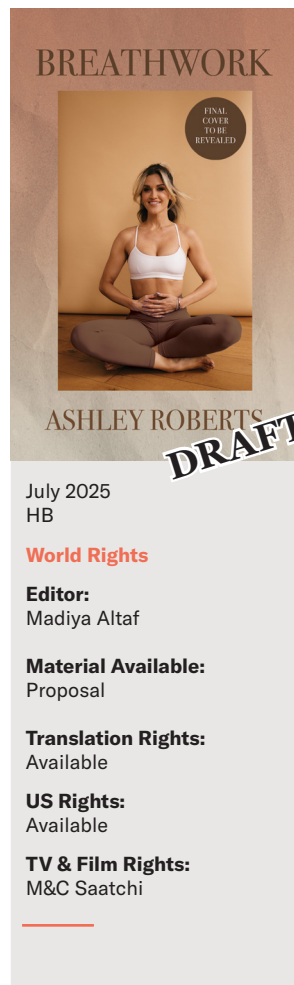

HANNAH MARSH is a journalist who specialises in writing about women and gender. She wrote a series of columns for The Independent focusing on feminist and gender issues and she has penned columns for The Vagenda. Hannah gave birth via Caesarean in 2017. After being diagnosed with PTSD following the birth, discovering more about the procedure, and its history, became both a fascination and a key part of her healing.

Ten Ways To Find Love... And How To Keep It

Dr Lisa Portolan

A guide to romance in the digital world.

Everyone is looking for love, at least at certain pivotal moments in our lives. But the search for love in the 21st century is fraught with obstacles (not least among them pandemics), uncertainties (does romantic love really exist, and if it does, are we worthy of it?) and contradictions (the popularity of dating apps versus our cynicism about them).

Complicating the issue is our consumer culture's fixation on the disposable and the new. When it comes to finding love, many of us become stuck in a cycle of looking for the next, even better relationship. Ironically, while we're on this quest for romantic novelty, we may also be craving long-term partnerships, feeling like failures if we don't achieve them.

How can we reconcile these conflicting desires?

A media commentator, podcaster and academic, with a PhD in dating apps and intimacy, Dr Lisa Portolan has conducted hundreds of interviews over many years on the question of what love looks like in the digital age. Drawing on her findings, she presents strategies to help you navigate the complexities of real-world relationships in order to achieve - and maintain - a successful, committed partnership. Case studies are woven throughout, representing all aspects of the seeking, finding and keeping of love.

And what is the most profound lesson to be drawn from this incisive, compassionate, often humorous handbook? Ultimately, the pursuit of love is not just about finding a soulmate - it's about becoming a better version of ourselves in the process.

DR LISA PORTOLAN is an academic and researcher from Sydney. Her PhD relates to dating apps and how intimacy is navigated and negotiated through the digital landscape. She is a casual academic at the University of Technology Sydney, examining new and emerging technologies and platforms like TikTok, and their impact on communication and intimacy. She writes for a number of publications including The Conversation and had a top-ten podcast, Slow Love, where the key area of focus was sex, love, and intimacy during the Covid-19 pandemic.

Shahroo Izadi delves deep into the intricacies of food addiction perpetuated by diets and unveils the secret to sustainable weight loss.

The gig's up. 70 years since 'cabbage soup', obesity has tripled, 97% of all dieters gain it all back - and more, and diets are 5 times more likely to result in an eating disorder than sustained weight loss.

In this ground-breaking book, Shahroo Izadi delves deep into the intricacies of food addiction perpetuated by diets and unveils the secret to sustainable weight loss through actively unlearning damaging - and fattening - diet habits.

Drawing on both professional and lived experience, Izadi challenges conventional wisdom surrounding diets and obesity treatment, offering readers a clear, compassionate and restorative framework for reclaiming power over food and losing weight for good.

How Diets Make Us Fat serves as a defiant call to arms against the diet industry's exploitation and manipulation. By learning to truly trust and believe in themselves again, readers can flip a defiant middle finger to the industry that has profited from their suffering for far too long and finally find the mental peace and physical balance they so deserve.

SHAHROO IZADI is a psychologist and addiction specialist, who has written two bestselling books. She has hosted workshops at Amazon, Google, Facebook, and JP Morgan, among others, that help people build healthier habits. She was named Thought Leader of the Year at House of Lords by the Baton Awards and her work has featured in The Telegraph, Marie Claire and Grazia among others. Shahroo herself has struggled with food addiction, and is keen to spread a message of healing that is built on kindness.

A new approach to managing food feelings, fussiness and eating disorders for ages 0-16.

Were you ever told 'you can't have dessert until you eat all your vegetables?' Or to 'be grateful for your meal'? Or perhaps you yourself have said 'Mummy's on a diet so she can't eat that' or 'Daddy is fat, you don't want to be like him'. We may not realise, but we are constantly communicating our thoughts on food to our children.

As we continue to navigate complex mealtimes, picky eating, emotions and tantrums as well as puberty, diet culture, body image and eating disorders - now more than ever, we need to change the way we communicate about food to our children and ourselves.

So how do we help children develop and nurture a healthy relationship with food?

Clinical psychologist and eating disorder specialist Dr Anna Colton guides us through a judgement and shame-free journey from pregnancy to a child's adolescence with accessible scientific and psychological explanations. She shows us how we've formed our relationship with food and gives us the practical, evidence-based tools to instil a positive relationship with eating in our children.

'A book every parent should read - an eye-opening and shame-free guide on how we improve our children's relationship with food.'

Zoe Blaskey, author and podcast host of Motherkind

A vital investigation into how disposability has transformed our lives and why we've been unable to kick our plastic habit.

Over the past seventy years, McDonald's, Coca-Cola, Procter & Gamble, Unilever and other consumer goods makers have harnessed single-use plastics to turbocharge their profits. They've poured billions of dollars into convincing us we need disposable diapers, cups, bags, bottles, shampoo in sachets and ultra-processed foods sealed in plastic.

We were never clamouring for any of this. But this shift towards disposability has fundamentally transformed our daily habits. Think of toddlers kept in disposable diapers for far longer than their parents wore cloth, our obsession with bottled water and our insatiable appetite for convenient snacks and coffee. While at first we shaped plastics, somewhere along the way, plastics took over and began shaping us.

Like any addiction, our plastic habit has consequences. It is damaging our climate and biodiversity - today, the equivalent of one garbage truck of plastic waste ends up in the ocean every minute - and we are only just starting to understand its effect on our own health.

In investigating how we got here, Consumed arms us to make better decisions about where we go next. It is only by understanding this history that we will stop accepting the same failed solutions and demand better from the brands that got us hooked on plastic in the first place.

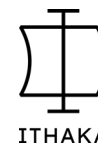

'This book will change the way you see the world and could change the world itself.'

Chris Van Tulleken, author of Ultraprocessed People

'A must read for anyone who buys anything plastic.'

Michael Moss, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of Salt, Sugar, Fat

An urgent work of reportage which takes the reader deep inside the Amazon rainforest, and shows that even if you kill a journalist, you cannot silence a story.

On 5 June 2022, award-winning journalist Dom Phillips was working on this book, alongside the indigenous expert Bruno Pereira, when they were both shot. They are believed to have been assassinated by one of the criminal networks whose ecological exploitation they were working to expose.

As the world becomes more aware of the significance of the Amazon, home to nearly 400 billion trees, working in this vast region has become ever more dangerous for activists and journalists. Fires and land grabs have spiked in recent decades, pushing the world's biggest forest ever closer to a point of no return. The last few years have seen efforts to reduce deforestation, but the question remains; can we save this globally essential ecosystem before it's too late?

Dom's important and ultimately hopeful book argues the answer is yes. A group of expert writers took up his partially completed manuscript, committed to his mission of uncovering the truth about deforestation and searching for solutions. Blending in-depth reporting and encounters with indigenous activists, ecologists, farmers, and political figures, How to Save the Amazon is a dazzling account of how we can fight ecological destruction.

The insider account of a football match-fixing scandal, from former professional footballer – and convicted fixer – Moses Swaibu.

In 2012, English football was rocked by the biggest match-fixing operation to hit these shores in recent times.

An Asian syndicate had infiltrated the Conference South with players being offered vast sums of money to help rig games and net millions of pounds for the fixers. Loyal fans attending matches were oblivious to the fact that outcomes had been predetermined. The remarkable story of how this syndicate was able to take hold of the national sport is told by a man who not only played in many of these games, but went to jail for helping to fix them – Moses Swaibu.

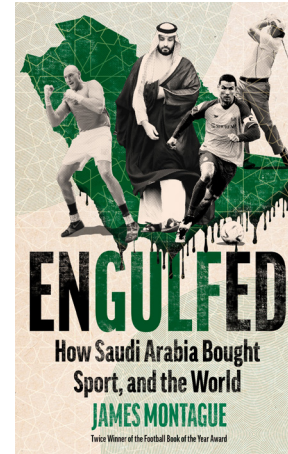

Fixed breaks new ground as Moses Swaibu becomes the first player ever to write openly about how he helped to fix games, revealing exactly what happens on the pitch when a match is being manipulated. He also exposes how the criminal gangs operate, how young professional players are targeted and groomed and the threats of violence that are used to keep them in check. Offering a fascinating insight into the ugly side of the beautiful game, this is a sporting autobiography like none ever written before.

MOSES SWAIBU is a former professional footballer who played for Crystal Palace and Lincoln City as well as clubs including Bromley, Sutton and Whitehaven. In 2013, he was jailed for his part in a match-fixing scam which rocked English football. Since his release from prison, he has made it his mission to warn other young players against the perils of match-fixing. He is working with FIFA and other sporting organisations to tackle the problem that has been described as an 'epidemic'. He is currently working with the BBC on a podcast serialisation of his story.

An in-depth look at how the murder of Jamal Khashoggi sped up the Saudi state's involvement and investment in sport.

In 2034, Saudi Arabia will host the men's FIFA World Cup and mark the culmination of Mohammed bin Salman's ambitious plan to modernise Saudi Arabia, a kingdom of unfathomable wealth at the heart of the Islamic world, which is only now emerging from nearly a century of self-isolation. How did we get here? Why would a country spend tens of billions of dollars, perhaps even hundreds of billions in the long run, to buy and control sport?

Engulfed is a story about ambition, family rivalries, extreme wealth, power, murder and disinformation. It is also the story of dictatorship, political corruption and, at its root, how sport – football, yes, but also golf, boxing and even e-sports – became a vital geopolitical tool for Saudi Arabia.

Drawing on Montague's exclusive first-hand interviews from his extensive travels across Saudi Arabia, the US, the north-east of England, Spain, Turkey and beyond, Engulfed uncovers how the House of Saud zeroed in on the political power of sport, using it both as a powerful political tool of influence and as a way to rectify the PR damage caused by one of the most infamous assassinations in history: the murder of Jamal Khashoggi.

'Deep knowledge of the region combined with bravura on-the-ground reporting and, above all, a clear-eyed realism about how sport has placed itself in the malign service of power.'

David Goldblatt

'Saudi Arabia is a hard country to report on and understand, but Montague is equal to the task. An important book.'

The definitive biography of the most successful driver in the history of F1 - and the most dominant British sportsman of all time.

After equalling Michael Schumacher's record of seven world titles, and overtaking him as having the most race wins, pole positions and podium finishes, Sir Lewis Hamilton became the most successful racing driver of all time - and the most dominant and successful Briton ever to drive in Formula 1.

Hamilton's debut season in 2007 won him fans around the world, and his place in Formula 1 history was sealed the following year when he became the youngest ever world champion. In the years since, he has created headlines on and off the track with his rivalries with Nico Rosberg, Sebastian Vettel and Max Verstappen, a shock move from Mercedes to Ferrari, along with relationships that have landed him on the front pages of the tabloids. However, despite the media glare, he has continued to prove his incredible talent and tenacity and remains utterly dominant in his sport.

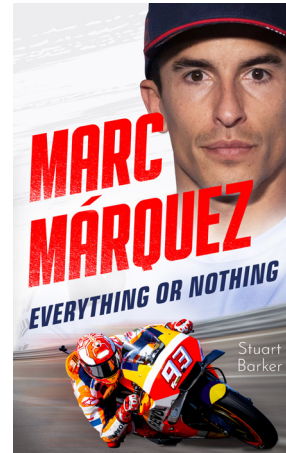

In this insightful biography, bestselling sports author Frank Worrall traces the slipstream of Hamilton's incredible career as the fastest driver on the planet. This is the story of the young man who has gone from being the rookie Sir Jackie Stewart said 'has rewritten the rule book' to a world champion many times over - and become Britain's greatest ever sportsman in the process.

FRANK WORRALL is a journalist who writes regularly for The Sunday Times and The Sun. He is also the author of number one bestseller Roy Keane: Red Man Walking, and countless football books including Rooney: Wayne's World, Giggys and The Magnificent Sevens.

The definitive biography of MotoGP superstar racer Marc Márquez from bestselling motorsports author Stuart Barker.

Marc Márquez is the apex predator of the MotoGP world: arguably the greatest motorcycle racer who ever lived, he is an eight-time world champion. He is the man who dethroned Valentino Rossi, and who changed the sport of MotoGP forever.

Márquez's hyper-aggressive riding style has made him many enemies, and his epic championship battle with Valentino Rossi in 2015 led to one of the most controversial moments in the history of MotoGP.

But his story off the track is also incredible: devastating accidents, surgeries and recoveries. Racing on despite a diagnosis that one more head injury could leave him blind, his self-admittedly ruthless personality and desire to win makes him an explosive, dominant and at times controversial character - to the point that even his own tight-knit family often struggle to understand what drives him.

Told by bestselling author Stuart Barker, with the insight of rivals, team members, pundits, managers and many close to his story, this is pure sporting theatre and white-knuckle speed twinned with real human drama. Everything or Nothing is the Márquez story told like never before.

The first major biography of Britain's most successful coach, Sir David Brailsford, from Team GB, to Team Sky, to Manchester United.

'To some, Dave Brailsford is the Dalai Lama; to others, he's Colonel Kurtz.'

Sir David Brailsford is one of Britain's most recognisable sporting figures: the result of a career masterminding first Olympic cycling success, followed by further triumphs in the Tour de France and beyond. He is the pioneer and chief populariser of the 'incremental marginal gains' methodology - the idea that small improvements across multiple areas add up to big leaps in performance - that has swept through stadia, boardrooms, and the media over the last fifteen years.

Brailsford is one of Britain's most decorated coaches, and also one of the most controversial. He led Team GB to unprecedented success in the velodrome and Team Sky to winning seven Tours De France in a row, but he has also been the subject of doubts and suspicions, culminating in investigations into bullying and cheating on his watch. He is now set to feature on an even bigger scale as a prominent part of the new setup aiming to turn around the fortunes of one of the world's biggest football clubs: Manchester United.

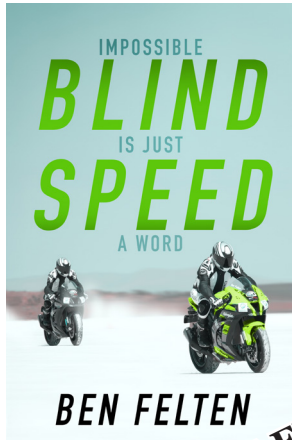

Journalist Jeremy Whittle has witnessed Dave's journey from close range - he has interviewed Brailsford many times both on and off the record, and spent time with everyone around him that matters most including Bradley Wiggins, Mark Cavendish, and Chris Hoy.

Dave Brailsford offers the full definitive story of one of Britain's most successful and controversial leaders, gurus and performance directors.

JEREMY WHITTLE is a cycling correspondent for The Guardian and has been writing about European cycling since 1994. He is the acclaimed author of Bad Blood: the Secret Life of the Tour de France and collaborated with David Millar on his best-selling autobiography, Racing Through The Dark. Both books were shortlisted for the William Hill Sports Book of the Year award. Jeremy is also a former editor of ProCycling magazine, a PPA Awards nominee, and has contributed to the BBC, Sky, CNN, L'Équipe and numerous other international media.

Ben soon realised he needed to take responsibility for himself, finally accept the diagnosis and move on with his life. Returning to his first love, he went on to set the world record for the fastest blind motorbike racer in 2018, clocking a speed of 266.685 km/h. He also created the Nepean Blind Sports Club and established Sailability, a program catering to both able and disabled people to learn about and participate in sailing.

Ben's painful, yet inspirational story of courage and determination is awe-inspiring in every sense of the word.

BEN FELTEN has a host of medals, as well as records, to his name in rowing and cricket, including the Jim Anderson Memorial Award for Distinguished Service to Sport and Administration. In 2018 he set the Guinness world record for fastest blind motorbike racer. As a result of his growing public profile, Ben had a documentary made about his incredible journey, called Dark Rider. The inspiring story of Javeno McLean, founder of the award-winning Health Centre, and his 'superstars', people with health challenges who have inspired millions across the globe through his TikTok and Instagram channels.

On a summer's day in 2023, Javeno Mclean was about to train a young girl called Kiera who was recovering from a brain tumour. After chemotherapy damaged her nerves, Kiera was unsure if she would ever be able to walk again. With a good feeling about Kiera's progress, Javeno decided to record her arrival...

She gets out of the front passenger seat of a car without any help. She puts one hand on top of the door and one on the frame before pulling herself up. I'm encouraging her: 'Go on, K-Boogie!' Kiera steadies herself, gets her balance and walks across the pavement to J7. I'm next to her, but I didn't need to support her. She puts her hand on the door . . . and opens it. The video has since been watched over 23 million times.

After leaving professional sports to run fitness classes in the local community, Javeno realised he wanted to be a different kind of trainer. He envisioned a truly inclusive health centre: one where anybody could come and be empowered to soar, no matter what challenges they may be facing in life.

This book is the story of how that vision became a reality, what it's taught Javeno about love, community and resilience. But mostly it's about the people who came through the door.

Praise for Javeno McLean:

'When I see his (Instagram) posts it fills me with such hope in humanity. And reminds me to always try and remember to be kind. Patient. Grateful.'

The secret history of the renegade KGB agent who changed the Cold War.

Never told in full before, this is the account of how, in 1971, the defection of a KGB agent in London led to the expulsion of more than a hundred Soviet 'diplomats' from the UK.

Drawing on newly released case files, The Defector tells a startling story of Soviet plans to plant fake double-agents within British and American intelligence services, the paranoia that ensued, and how the actions of a genuine turncoat, the former KGB agent Oleg Lyalin, and the secrets he revealed led to one of the most dramatic and pivotal moments in the Cold War.

For Lyalin's defection to Britain not only discredited a previous KGB defector, Anatoliy Golitsyn, the darling of the CIA, but eventually destroyed the reputation of the Agency's head of counterintelligence, James Jesus Angleton.

At the heart of Lyalin's story is a narrative entwined with lies, disinformation, Kremlin deception campaigns, intelligence failures by the CIA and MI5, and a tangled love life. The Defector shows how the Soviet Union finally lost the Cold War.

A beguiling, entertaining and consummately curated miscellany of fascinating forgotten histories.

All too often, history focuses on the stories of kings, those (often men) who were given the credit, yet what fascinates most are the stories of those who have passed through the cracks of history, people like: Giuliana Coen, the greatest fashion designer you've never heard of, the women at Playtex and how their out-of-the-box thinking and incredible skill played a major role in getting the first man on the Moon, and the tale of the unknown war hero Tommy Brown, who helped the code breakers of Bletchley with his extraordinary act of bravery.

But it's not just the people, as this book also champions the curious back stories to everyday objects - the humble fork and the china cup, to name but a few.

Unheralded presents a thoughtful and often funny, curated selection of fascinating forgotten histories that give insight into some of the world's most important cultural moments. Told from the perspective of the overlooked, the book will present the curious and adventurous reader with the stories behind icons that surround us and inform our everyday lives, be they people or objects.

A fascinating study of piracy on the high seas from 1500 to 1850.

Those who have ruled the waves have forever captured popular imagination and those who have done so illegally, even more so. Our history books are full of swaggering pirate villainy, renegade sea captains and plundering rogues. But save for a few famous names that are frequently cited, the true nature of historic global piracy has not yet been fully explored.

In this fascinating study drawn on largely previously unseen records held at the National Archives, historian Oliver Finnegan reveals the true account of piracy between 1500 and 1850, whilst also examining its impact on our seas today. Spanning three distinct eras, Pirate Ways covers a wider geographical and chronological scope than readers generally associate with piracy, while engaging with very current themes such as migration, colonialism, gender and social networks.

This is a history of the waves that is as yet untold. The richness of these stories is staggering; from the day-to-day of life on board a ship, to the planning of ambushes and selling of stolen goods, and a pirate's eyewitness description of taking a merchantman deck by deck, the intricacy of Pirate Ways brings forth a cast of characters, all of whom played their own unique part in this important aspect of global history.

DR OLIVER FINNEGAN is a historian and the Prize Papers Record Specialist at the National Archives. He specialises in early modern oceanic history, covering piracy, the slave trade and overseas networks. He holds a PhD from the University of Cambridge and previously worked as a Postdoctoral Research Associate on the Prize Papers Project at Carl von Ossietzky Universität in Oldenburg, Germany. Britain's leading investigative writer and biographer, Tom Bower turns the full beam of his formidable powers on one of the most controversial figures of present day: Mohamed Al Fayed.

Owner of Harrods, bereaved father of Dodi and instigator of the 'cash for questions' sensation, this book was originally published in 1998 to wide acclaim. But with the recent heinous accusations of sexual misconduct coming to light, this new revised and updated edition will offer a new focus of Tom Bower's trademark acerbic insight on this controversial figure.

'[Tom Bower] is the Inspector Morse of investigative biographers, a fluent, phlegmatic story-teller and a master of intricacies.'

SUNDAY TIMES

'Given the extreme difficulty of researching a subject like Fayed, Bower deserves full marks for effort and courage ... his Fayed is a "fuggin" good read.'

From the award-winning and critically acclaimed author Debra Dank comes a book about the discovery of having family members taken, and the secrets that come with that absence.

Debra's world was shaken to its core when she received a letter that stated her grandmother had given birth to more children than her family had known about.

She had always assumed that, within her family, the violence of the Stolen Generations had been minimalised. Hers seemed to be among the very few Aboriginal families that had escaped having children stolen and had viewed this event from a relatively safer distance.

Written from the perspective of a child left behind, this book explores loss of opportunity to grow with aunts and uncles, of knowledge not being shared and learned, of memories not made and of a love that is one-sided and yearning.

A Gudanji/Wakaja and Kalkadoon woman from the Barkly Tablelands in the Northern Territory, DR DEBRA DANK is an Enterprise Fellow with the University of South Australia. She has spent 40 years working in primary, secondary and tertiary education roles, in urban and remote areas across Australia. She is interested in multiform narrative and its practice in Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal communities and the role semiotics plays in that. Her book, We Come with This Place, won numerous honours in 2023, including four New South Wales Premier's Awards and the Australian Literature Society Gold Medal.

The horrifying story of Jonathan Cresswell and the rape and murder of 21 year old showjumper Katie Simpson, who was initially thought to have taken her own life until Cresswell's crime was uncovered.

Jonathan Cresswell was a dangerous and violent man, particularly to women. He manipulated his many girlfriends using coercive control and physically assaulted them if they didn't do as he wished.

In August 2020 he raped and murdered showjumper Katie Simpson, the sister of his partner and the aunt of his two children. He attempted to cover up the murder and pretended he had found her hanging from the landing in their shared home, and he very nearly got away with it. Only the persistence of an investigative journalist, suspicious nurses and Katie's concerned family and friends caused the PSNI to open a case almost five months after her death.

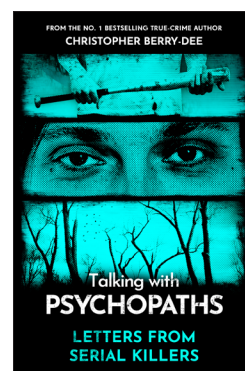

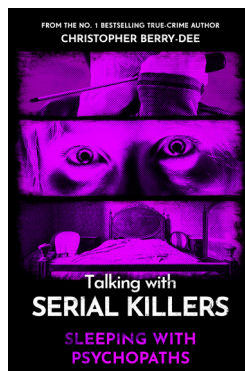

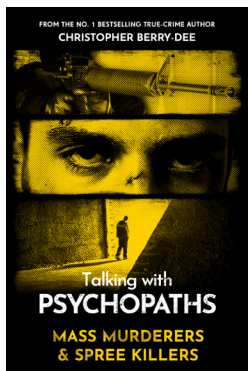

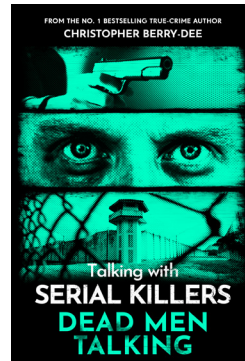

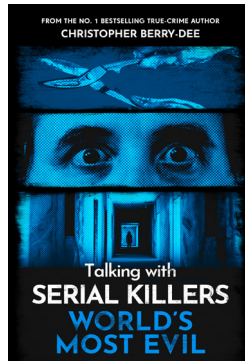

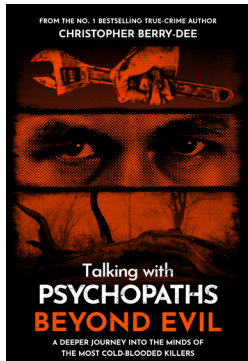

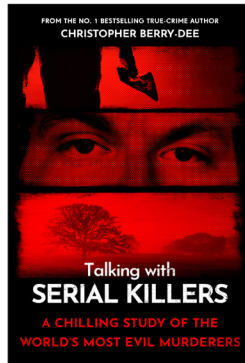

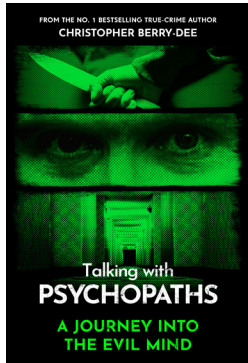

During the resulting trial Cresswell killed himself. Three other women were charged with helping him to conceal his crime, and each received a suspended sentence due their deference of being under Cresswell's control.

The shocking, tell-all memoir from '90s popstar and heart-throb formerly known as Kavana.

Born in Manchester in 1977, Anthony Kavanagh's rise to fame was stratospheric, scoring a record deal at the age of just sixteen and winning the much-coveted Smash Hits Male Artist of the Year Award in 1997, all the while appearing on countless magazine covers, performing on Top of the Pops and gigging alongside the Spice Girls. The stuff that dreams are made of.

But Anthony - or Kavana as he had been christened by The Manager - was also trying to keep his sexuality a secret while navigating his way through an industry where image was everything; where his success depended on him having to be exactly who he wasn't.

What followed was a dark and dangerous spiral into addiction, an illness that would doggedly hound and baffle him for years to come. Pop Scars chronicles the highs, the lows, the lies, the debauchery, the hitting rock bottom and then finding out that rock bottom has a basement.

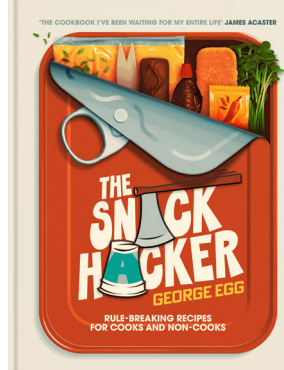

Thirty years on, Anthony is ready to tell his jaw-dropping story. This is a book about stardom, fame, addiction, grief and - ultimately - survival and sobriety.

ANTHONY KAVANAGH is a writer, singer and songwriter who rose to fame in the late 1990s with a number of hit singles, including 'I Can Make You Feel Good' and 'MFEO'. He lives in London.

Women are Angry

Jennifer Cox

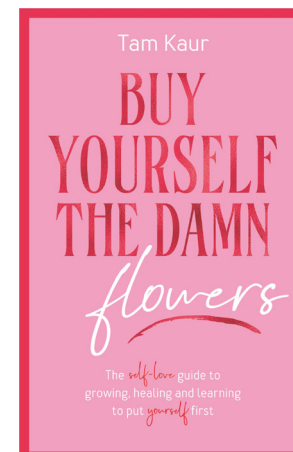

What if you aren't depressed? What if you don't have chronic fatigue? What if you are just . . . angry?

In a world where patience is a virtue and being a good girl is for life, women are never allowed to truly express their anger - and it is making us ill. After a lifetime of being told to repress it, to hide it away and fear it, anger has begun to manifest in female bodies in myriad ways we can't control. And the results are alarming.

Jennifer Cox takes us on a journey from cradle to grave revealing how, at every stage of our lives, women are conditioned not to speak out or 'make a fuss', and showing us how to tune in to our feelings of frustration and offers us the tools to express what we have subdued for so long.

InnSæi

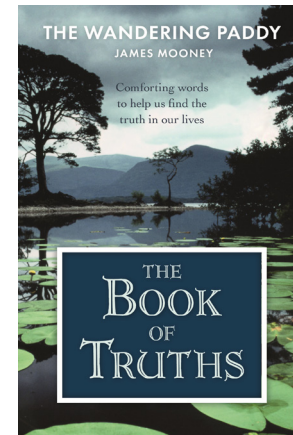

Hrund Gunnsteinsdóttir
Heal, revive and reset with the Icelandic art of intuition.

Simply put, InnSæi (pronounced 'in-sy-eh') is the Icelandic word for intuition. It means the sea within (the flow of our unconscious mind), to see within (how we introspect), and to see from the inside out (how we navigate the world). InnSæi exists within all of us.

We live in a world where it's easy to feel lost, disconnected or without a purpose. Learning about InnSæi is the first step to reconnecting with yourself and the environment.

Hrund Gunnsteinsdóttir explains how aligning with the sea within will help you to make more informed decisions and welcome creativity and wonder back into your life; and seeing from the inside out will empower you to make change around you and live a more fulfilled life.

Why Can't I Just Enjoy Things?

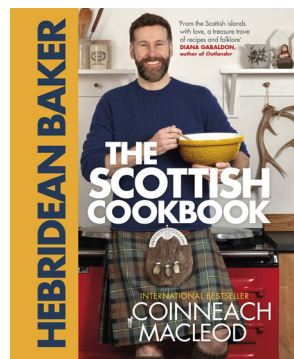

Pierre Novellie

A light-hearted and accessible memoir by comedian Pierre Novellie, exploring his late diagnosis of Autism Spectrum Disorder.

Why were the other kids at school obsessed with Britney Spears instead of The Goon Show? Why don't people ever say what they mean? And . . . why is everyone chewing so loudly?

Comedian Pierre Novellie was on stage when a heckler suggested he was autistic. Usually, this disruption would be water off a duck's back but two things made this heckler different: first, he was himself autistic. Second, he turned out to be absolutely right.

At once a hilarious and insightful journey through autism and neurodivergence, an entertaining explainer for the uninitiated and observational comedy for the neurodiverse, this is the perfect read for anyone who has ever asked themselves: why can't I just enjoy things?

Songbird

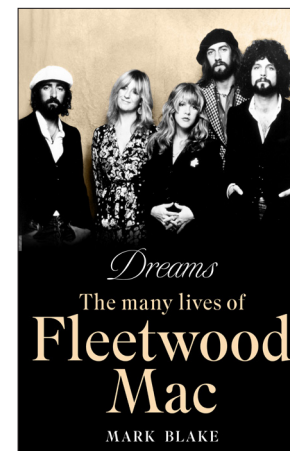

Lesley-Ann Jones

The only authoritative biography of the Fleetwood Mac legend

Christine McVie - born Christine Perfect - was the quintessentially English rock star, as both the backbone and the beating heart of Fleetwood Mac. As famous for their occasionally life-threateningly decadent lifestyles as for their musical brilliance, they were held together by this strong, constant figure whom they dubbed 'the mother' of the band. And yet, as the 'engine' of the band during their Rumours era - an album which charted the complete romantic disintegration within the band - Christine's personal life was every bit as tempestuous as those of her bandmates, weathering affairs, divorce, addiction and fiery passion, all of which bled into her now iconic song-writing.

Told by an author who herself was friends with Christine, and with new contributions from those who knew her best, this the first, the only, the ultimate picture of a rock legend and a national treasure.

Something Wicked

Carol Ann Lee

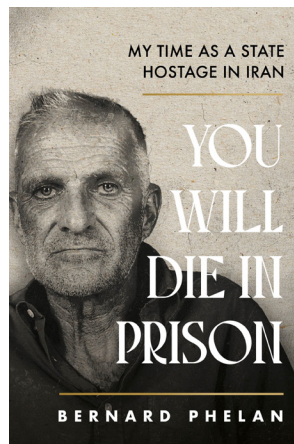

Before Salem, there was Pendle. Journey into the dark heart of England's largest and most notorious witch trial.

On 20 August 1612, ten people from Pendle were executed before a vast crowd at Lancaster's Gallows Hill.

Today, a thriving tourism industry exists in and around Pendle, the former home of the so-called witches, yet virtually everything we know about the case originates from a single source: Thomas Potts' Wonderfull Discoverie of Witches, hurriedly published in 1613 and distinctly skewed in favour of the prosecution. Until now . . .

Sunday Times bestselling author Carol Ann Lee brings an entirely fresh perspective to the story by approaching it as true crime. Having worked in the genre for over a decade, her research leads to revelatory discoveries, transforming our knowledge of those shadowy figures behind ill-famed names, and the terrible events that befell them.
